Although dropped off by Commander Peary when within 180 miles of the north pole, D. C. MacMillan of Worcester, Mass., gained sufficient first-hand information about the memorable trip to make a very interesting lecture, and he presented it at the Barre opera house last night to a fair-sized audience. The lecture was illustrated with two hundred stereoscopic views, all of them clear. Mr. MacMillan took the occasion to defend Commander Peary vigorously against the hostile Congress.
